A miraculous catch of fish.

Peter was a fisherman. He knew the times and the places that fish could be caught. So it wasn't a coincidence that he and the other disciples fished when and where they did. However, a long night of fishing had produced nothing. They likely were about to give up on catching anything when Jesus called out from shore and told them they'd find fish on the other side of the boat. They probably laughed at the suggestion! But for some reason—maybe something in them wondered if the lone figure on the shore could be Jesus—they obeyed what the man said. And the passage tells us what happened!

Suddenly Peter's priorities changed; he knew it was Jesus who had spoken to them from the shore. Peter was more excited about seeing Jesus than about bringing in the huge catch of fish that they'd hoped for all night! As Peter swam to the shore, the other disciples dragged in the net full of fish. The miraculous catch of fish revealed Jesus to Peter.
